In conclusion, two studies from India documented that CMP with obvious physical changes are the most common presentation of DM and IDM is the least common. When compared with their Indian counterparts, we could not find a significant difference in the type of presentation in our population. Despite having less number of patients, we could document the increasing occurrence of DM in our population. Source of Support: Nil Conflict of Interest: None declared. Q: Image below the div with max-width I have a div which contains an image, and a div which contains text. I want the image to be fixed so that it is always below the div. It should not exceed the height of the text. Code: .content { position: fixed; width: 100%; top: 50px; } .content p { font-family: Arial, Helvetica, sans-serif; font-size: 13px; font-weight: bold; line-height: 18px; color: #151515; margin: 0; padding: 0; } .image { margin: 10px; border: 1px solid black; position: relative; overflow: hidden; width: 45%; padding: 10px; text-align: center; } And here is the demo link: I tried positioning the image div above.content but the image does not go in the middle of the.content. I also tried to reduce the width of the.image div but it does not help. How can I have the image placed in the center of the content div? A: Add clear:both to.content and use: .content { position: fixed; width: 100%; top: 50px; clear: both; }
