- appearance - This is the main element that defines the representation of the transfer and use of information about design decisions;
- all information about the shape of the product must be presented in one color;
- instructions on the use of standard design elements;
- to increase the aesthetic appeal of products, it is necessary to use industrial coloring of the product, with maximum preservation of the transparency and quality of the coating. In practice, these requirements are not met. In the project, the composition of products is presented, as they say, "by eye", which requires multiple combination of images from different sheets, followed by their verification for correct alignment. Such a specification significantly increases the time and cost of product development. The next important element of technical documentation is diagrams, drawings of individual parts, assemblies, assembly units, single parts in general, while the dimensions, shape, relative position of individual drawings can be of varying degrees of detail and completeness. Drawings are recommended to be made on a scale of 1:100 - 1:5000, if necessary, 1:20000, 1:10000, 1:10000.1:2000. Black and white margins in the drawings should not take up more than 1/6 of a sheet of paper, the fonts should be black, and the point size should be 10. The importance of printed materials in modern society cannot be overestimated. Printed publications are used in all spheres of human activity. These are brochures, catalogs, booklets, leaflets, posters and much more. Thanks to
