There have been few investigations of fluoride release rates from dental caries prophylactic materials used clinically for long-term treatment. This paper describes the fluoride release from a group of commercially available adhesive and encapsulated fluoride-releasing compomers in a 0.5% NaF solution. A fluoridated control composite, a non-fluoride adhesive compomer and a non-fluoride encapsulated compomer were also tested. After 1 week in water, and for all materials tested, up to 30% fluoride was released. After 14 months in a 0.5% NaF solution, cumulative release of fluoride was the highest (7.9 microg) for a compomer formulated as an encapsulated product. Two compomers (14.6 microg) showed higher fluoride release than the adhesive compomer (10.4 microg) after 14 months of exposure to a 0.5% NaF solution. The fluoride release from the compomers and control composite was probably due to the continuous leaching of a small proportion of fluoride ions from the tooth structure into the solution. Over periods of 2 months to 15 months no marked change in fluoride release was found for any of the compomers. Between 2 and 15 months in a 0.5% NaF solution, two of the compomers released up to 15 microg fluoride in 3 months. All the materials (with the exception of the encapsulated product) showed a distinct rise in fluoride release after 12 months in the 0.5% NaF solution. The advantages and disadvantages of the materials tested are discussed in relation to their potential clinical application. This painting is somewhat different from the other as it is more in line with what I drew in my August story. I'm really liking how this one is coming out. Just a bit of background...I don't have a clue who the artist is in this picture. The girl is either a peer of mine on the syndicated art app, or she is a fan of the app and decided to contribute her art. 9 Responses to Geometria proyectiva santalo pdf Ahh, the 90s. Sometimes life really was an 80s throwback. Stickers, I don't think so. I do sometimes use stickers, but I try to be original and change things up a bit with my own stickers. I did a bit of sticker designing in high school, I think those are called duct tape. Nothing fancy, I was a kid. It's good to see the vibrant colors from her other painting. And because I'm an artist and that's the best way to practice. It's common practice to sketch the rough shape of the piece, and then trace it in. Then you take the tracing, and start to trace over it with a pencil or ink so you'll have a nice, clean piece of paper to paint on. Good call, and good idea. I find sketches to be a great way to
