Adjustment . and our jury could consider this evidence in determining whether the prosecutor disclosed exculpatory information. Even if we assume that the prosecutor was aware of the information concerning the identity of the gunman before the trial, the question remains whether “there exists a reasonable possibility that, had the evidence been disclosed to the defense, the result of the proceeding would have been different.” State v. Anthony, 817 N.W.2d 149, 159 (Iowa 2012) (quoting Kyles, 514 U.S. at 433–34, 115 S. Ct. at 1566, 131 L. Ed. 2d at 826). For the same reasons we found that the identity of the shooter was not material evidence in connection with Bigbee’s argument that his counsel was ineffective for failing to investigate potential witnesses, we find that there is no reasonable probability that the verdict would have been different if the prosecutor had disclosed the additional, unknown gunman’s identity. Lastly, Bigbee argues that his attorney rendered ineffective assistance when he failed to object to the prosecutor’s late disclosure of the roster of State witnesses. This claim of ineffective assistance is based on the same rationale as his previous claims of ineffective assistance. In our previous discussion,
